

The application process for the COVID-19 Child Care Tuition Assistance Program open today. Eligible families in need of child care for their school age children as schools have opened remotely can apply online at www.childcarenj.gov/COVID19.

The tuition assistance is part of $250 million plan announced last month by Governor Murphy to support working families and child care. This new program will provide tuition assistance to New Jersey families with incomes up to $75,000 in need of either full or part-time child care depending on their school's remote learning schedule. The department will consider applications until funding is exhausted.

Attached you will find a flier with more information and details about the program.
