Wednesday March 7 Update - Evening

We've been informed by JCP&L that the line crews are being called back temporarily due to the weather conditions. As soon as we receive word on when they will be back to continue the clean up and repair work, we will share that information with you.

We are also receiving word that some of you who have had their power restored have lost it again. As we've emphasized in these messages be sure to call your outage in to JCP&L and call again every day to make sure it has not been misplaced or classified as completed.
